'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Mystery stories continue to hold their lead in the choice of reading for Richmond citizens.

According to librarians at the local library, a majority of the readers who take out books can tell of a murder in the first paragraph and the solving of the crime in the last chapter.

Western stories are still favored by the public. There are a number of western writers whose books are always in demand.

Love stories are favored by some, but not all.

The largest demand has been for "All Quiet on the Western Front," which is a German's story of his war experiences.

This book, by the way, has headed the Bookman's list for the last few months as the best seller.

Some of the "war books" which were written during the last fracas, never leave the shelves any more. It is evident that the public is well fed up on propaganda.

However, some of the war books are still popular. Two of them are "Canoeers Have Hairy Ears," and "Over the Top."

O. Henry's books are popular. They will always be as they are classics of American literature.

The collections of Mark Twain are well thumbed. People still get a laugh from some of Mark's writings.

A large number of women writers are included in the list of the ten best sellers. Of course, one of the most read among them is Edna Ferber.

Some of the writers whose books years ago were considered the latest thing in American literature are now forgotten and rarely touched.

This, of course, can be laid to the public's yen for something new.

An amusing book which was recently added to the library's collection is "Seven Months and Seven Days." It is the story of a trip around the world made by a second mate on a tramp schooner.

In spots it is amusing. In other spots it is frightfully dull. Especially when the author gives you his impression of religion, and what have you.

300 INJURED, MANY MAY DIE

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 21.—UP—A fierce fire, set by prisoners themselves, made an inferno of the west cell block of the Ohio state prison tonight and by mid-evening one of the greatest tragedies in recent history was in its final stage.

At 9:30 p. m. three hours after the first fire, that was fanned by a stiff west wind across the prison, it was officially estimated that 309 convicts had been burned to death.

Three hundred more men were burned or overcome by smoke, and of these, many were doomed to die.

For more than three hours the situation could be described as little less than a hell.

Hundreds Trapped
Hundreds of convicts were trapped hopelessly. Others attacked guards and released themselves and those of their comrades they could reach.

Within a short time a good portion of the 450 men in the prison were out in the central yard—much like a university quadrangle.

They were frenzied with rage and excitement. Inside in cell blocks away from the fire, the other thousands of convicts screamed and cursed in fury that they might have been abandoned.

Before even a semblance of order was restored, police had reinforced guards, a company of federal troops had reinforced the police, and a regiment of National Guardsmen had been called out.

Chaos
Doctors, ambulances, army trucks, the soldiers and others were mixed up in a seething mob.

The convicts in the yard threatened again and again to make a break.

CAR CENSUS UNDER WAY

A census of automobiles on the highways was started yesterday by the United States Bureau of Public Roads.

Cars were stopped along San Pablo avenue and drivers were presented with cards to be filled out.

Motorists are asked how much mileage they made during the day; where they are going; if they plan to go outside of the state and how many they expect to take with them.

The census is to assist the state and the United States government in providing highways in accordance with the requirements of traffic.

Reports Given To City Council

A number of minor matters were handled by the city council at its meeting last night.

The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $193,163.79.

The expenses of the Richmond Health Center for April 1 amounted to $553.78.

An ordinance rezoning lots on Wal's avenue and on Twenty-fourth street, near Macdonald, was adopted.

The application of Roy Atwood for a gas and service station at Second and Macdonald was referred to the city planning commission.

Census To Continue Here This Week

In an effort to obtain every possible name on the census count in Richmond, enumeration is being continued here this week. The unofficial count to date is near 20,000. City Clerk Farris said yesterday that a few names are being added each day.

ELECTROLIER SYSTEM FOR TENTH STREET PETITIONED

If the plans are carried out as presented to the city council at its meeting last night, Tenth street, from Lucas to Cutting will be turned into a new "white way."

A petition was presented asking that a system of electroliers be installed, and also a maintenance district be formed.

The signers to the petition stated they were ready to bear the expense of the work and asked that the improvement be made by the issuance of five year bonds, which provides for six annual payments.

In order that the council might accurately ascertain the sentiment of the people on the street before taking action, the petition was referred to the city engineer and the city manager to canvass the section, and report back next Monday night.

The petition as presented to the council, asking for the work, had signatures representing 76 lots.

Accompanying the petition was a protest from thirteen who asked that the lights not be extended farther north than Ripley avenue.

Fight Seen On School Merger

MARTINEZ, April 21.—Although a recent election, the second to determine consolidation of the Green Valley and Danville school districts, was won by the consolidationists, a legal battle, that may talk the merger, loomed today.

William Short, an opponent of consolidation conferred here today with a local attorney on legal steps that might be taken to halt the merger going into effect.

His proposed attack, it was said, will be based on a claim that only five of the voters who petitioned Superintendent of Schools William Hanlon to call the second election are patrons of the Green Valley school, whereas the law demands that a majority of the patrons must petition.

The petition contained the names of 12 residents of that district.

Feeling has been running high in the two districts over the proposed consolidation, and was climaxed shortly after the first election, in which consolidation was defeated, by the arrest of two men, A. Sanchez and L. Campanale, charged with illegal voting.

Parr To Talk At High School

Fred D. Parr, president of the Parr-Richmond terminal and V. R. Pinckney, president of the South African Dispatch steamship company, will speak before an assembly of Richmond Union high school pupils Thursday morning on the subject of foreign trade.

These talks will introduce a course in foreign trade to be started at Richmond Union high school under the sponsorship of Fred Parr and the Richmond Chamber of Commerce.

Second Installment Of Taxes Now Due

MARTINEZ, April 21.—M. W. Joost, county tax collector, today called the attention of property owners to the fact that the second installments on taxes become delinquent after next Monday.

After that date, the law makes it incumbent upon him to collect a penalty for non-payment, which is five percent of the total tax.

Business Census Starts Here

H. H. Turley and George P. Upham, appointed to gather data for the federal census of distribution and manufacture, began their work yesterday, Turley visiting business concerns north of Macdonald avenue, and Upham the section south of Macdonald avenue.

PLANS FOR PROJECT READY

Dirt and mud are going to fly in a short time, on the new development of the Santa Fe in connection with other land owners in that district, in a short time.

Those who have boats in the slough that reaches Cutting boulevard, and those who hold cancellable permits, had better get busy or they will find themselves in the position that there will be neither ingress or egress.

B. H. Ryder, industrial agent of the Santa Fe has been busy the past few days serving notice on everyone who is occupying any part of the land or water.

The San Francisco Bridge company, which holds the contract for the dredging and filling, is fast completing its plans, and it will start on the contract in a short time.

This new development is one of the biggest that has ever been undertaken in Richmond, and when it is completed, will provide much additional water shipping facilities, and hundreds of acres of land for industries that cannot be excelled elsewhere.

It is understood that the Santa Fe has several large plants that are ready to locate in that section, just as soon as the property is ready to be built upon.

PACT TO BE SIGNED TODAY

LONDON, April 21.—UP—Signatures and red wafer seals will be affixed to a parchment sheet in St. James Palace tomorrow and the "London Naval Treaty" of 1930 will be an accomplished fact.

Sixty percent of the world's total warship tonnage—that of the United States, Great Britain and Japan—will be strictly limited. The way will be left open for limiting 25 percent more, belonging to France and Italy.

All the nations, by the simple act of signing the document will be under obligation to restrict submarine warfare and carry on the principal that naval strength is a matter of international concern.

Local Scots To Meet Wednesday

The St. Andrews society of this city will hold its monthly business meeting tomorrow night at the Richmond club house. Peter McCallum, president of the society will preside.

Plans for a horseshoe tournament between Gladstone lodge, Sons of St. George and the St. Andrews society of Richmond are to be made at the business meeting tomorrow evening. A friendly horseshoe contest will probably be played among the members following the meeting.

Drivers Fined In Court Here

Traffic fines received yesterday in the court of Judge A. A. Alstrom totaled $30.

Rodger Blanc, 2800 Twenty-fifth avenue, Oakland, was fined $14 for driving a truck with insufficient rubber on the tires. Manuel Silva, 224 Sixth avenue, was fined $5 for having no muffler on his machine, and James W. Young and Leslie A. Keer, both of Vallejo were fined $5 each for having no license plate.

Driver Fined On Hit, Run Charges

MARTINEZ, April 21.—Charged with failing to stop after an accident, Pete Ghilarducci was fined $100 today by Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie.

Princess Engaged?

PRINCESS BEATRICE eldest daughter of King Alfonso of Italy, has been rumored engaged to the Duke of Espolite, following an extended visit of the Duke at the Royal palace.

BETTER HOMES WEEK PLANNED IN RICHMOND

Better Homes Week will be held in Richmond April 27 to May 3, according to an announcement made yesterday by Mrs. C. F. DeShields, general chairman of the local celebration. Mrs. DeShields received her appointment from Washington recently.

An exhibition, is planned at the Odd Fellows hall building with programs to be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings.

Merchants are cooperating in the week plan and an exhibit of articles for better homes will be seen.

The four federated clubs of Richmond, the P. T. A. and the Ministerial Union are cooperating in the plans.

Mrs. R. L. Wharton will be in charge of the P. T. A.'s part in the program; Mrs. W. W. Chapin will be general program chairman and Mrs. Virginia Bryant will be music chairman.

It is planned to hold a baby clinic on Thursday and it is probable that a prize will be awarded for the best baby.

Girls who are studying home economics at the high school will hold a cake and baking contest with a prize to be awarded by the P. T. A. for the best cake.

The chamber of commerce is also planning to give prizes for the exhibits.

Mayor Issues Better Homes Proclamation

National Better Homes Week which will be observed from April 27 to May 3, was proclaimed by Mayor A. L. Paulsen yesterday.

The Mayor's proclamation is as follows:

"In accordance with the National Better Homes movement, I hereby proclaim the week of April 27 to May 3 as Better Homes Week for the City of Richmond.

(Signed) "A. L. Paulsen, Mayor."

NOMINATION OF PARKER REJECTED

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(UP)—President Hoover's nomination of Judge John J. Parker to be a supreme court justice was recommended for senate rejection by the judiciary committee today, 40 to 6, with two regular republican senators casting decisive votes.

Objections by negro and labor organizations which built up hot home-fires that threatened political fences caused the adverse vote, which indicated the nomination will be defeated when it comes up for a vote of the senate.

Only eight similar appointments have been rejected in the previous history of the country.

White House officials indicated Hoover was as adamant against withdrawing the nomination as he was last week when administration senators found the opposition was getting too hot. But it was significantly noted that there are rumors that Parker's friends will seek to get him to withdraw.

Which would make the situation much easier for the regular republican senators as well as for the president. There have been six withdrawals of supreme court nominees in American history.

A week ago the judiciary committee was divided 8 to 8 on the nomination, but the vote today found Stetson of Oregon and Deen of Illinois siding up with the eight already known to be opposed.

Senators Borah and Norris are expected to lead the fight on the floor against Parker and the nomination, now on the calendar, may be brought up this week in order to make way for the tariff next week.

Borah's principal criticism is Parker's decision as judge of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, upholding an injunction based on the so-called "yellow-dog anti-union" contract. Morris intends to try to develop senate opposition on this point to obtain confirmation and passage of his own anti-labor injunction bill.

The race criticism, agitated widely in the negro press on the basis of a remark credited to Parker in 1920 when he was the republican candidate for governor of North Carolina, may not be widely discussed in the senate fight. But it has been perhaps even more portentous than the opposition of organized labor in forcing senators, particularly those from the border and middle western states with large negro populations.

Girl Injured In Auto Crash

Severe lacerations above the left eye were received in an automobile accident here late yesterday by Tami Fukuchi, 10 year old Japanese girl.

The accident occurred at the intersections of San Pablo and Garvin avenues, when the machine driven by the girl's father, T. P. Fukuchi, of Martinez, collided with an automobile driven by Mrs. Berntha Shubat, 784 San Pablo avenue, police reported. The girl was treated at the Hospital Richmond.

Outside of a broken windshield and a damaged steering gear, damage to the machines was slight.

Council Receives Terminal Report

Thirty-four thousand, nine hundred and sixty three tons of freight passed over the wharves of the city last month, according to the report of the Parr Terminal corporation, filed with the city council last night.

The net revenue amounted to $4,861.44, of which amount the city of Richmond will receive $1,901.50 and the Parr corporation $2,959.94.

FIRE HYDRANT

On the recommendation of Councilman W. W. Scott of the fire committee, the city council last night ordered a fire hydrant installed at the corner of Second and Cutting.

BERMAN IN U. S. PRISON TO ESCAPE JULIAN TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, April 21.—UP—The ever muddled trials resulting from the collapse of the Julian Petroleum corporation took on added complications today when Jacob Berman, former Julian executive, presumably fled the jurisdiction of state courts to begin serving a seven year federal conviction for mail fraud.

The surprise move interfered temporarily with the progress of two trials scheduled in Superior court here.

Dan Critchley, attorney for Berman, said that commitment papers for his client had been sent directly to the McNeil island federal penitentiary so that the surrender could occur there. S. C. Lewis, former president of Julian, recently went to McNeil island on a similar conviction to avoid state trials.

Berman's failure to appear before Superior Judge Emmet Wilson to face charges of jury bribery in the original trial of himself and others accused of wrecking the oil corporation, led the court to confiscate his bail of $5000, set new bail of $25,000 and order his arrest.

When Berman failed to appear before Superior Judge B. Key Schauer, for trial on a forgery charge, bail was increased from $1,000 to $100,000.

Both cases, affecting Berman and others, were continued. Incidentally, testimony by Berman led to the indictments in the bribery case and it was expected that he was proceeding under agreement with District Attorney Buron Pitts.

Prather Avenue To Be Improved

At the suggestion of the East Richmond Heights Land company, the council last night instructed City Engineer E. A. Hoffman to work out plans for the improvement of Prather avenue.

Bids were received for the work about a year ago and a contract awarded. As the work took in the intersection on Key boulevard, the contractors refused to sign the contract, their attorneys claiming there was a blanket mortgage on the right of way of the Key System, which would prevent collection of the re-assessments.

It is believed that the intersection will be omitted, and in this way Prather avenue can be improved as desired.

Land Deed Given Council

The city council last night accepted a deed from Lucetta Dunlap for a strip of land on south Twenty eighth street, that is to provide for the widening of the thoroughfare.

This is the only strip the city has lacked that prevented the improvement of the street from being made.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Moores Marshall

He's Not Arguing, He's Telling You

EVEN if it breaks the great hearts of all the pompous, purty old gentlemen—
Who used to be Anti-Suffragists.
And of all the sophisticated young gentlemen
Who are secretly worried over feminine competition in the job market—
Even if these two groups of East-Ditchers who still uphold the superiority of the male,
Are assaulted in their tenderest superstition—
It must be told that Science once more proves them all wrong—
That Science, not for the first time, says women's brains are as good as men's—
Not, we can hear a sardonic feminine chorus, that that's saying so much!
But this woman's column must do its share
In spreading the news just come from Cornell University—
News that is scientific fact, not feminist argument—
Dr. James H. Papez not arguing with men,
He's telling the poor, mistaken misogynists!
Dr. Papez is Assistant Professor of Neurology at Cornell,
And Curator of the Burt G. Wilder brain collection—
In which are the brains of many notable men and women.
The professor has been making a special comparative study
Of the brains of twenty men and
Twenty women.
Selected from the more intellectual types.
His laboratory investigations have gone on for many years,
And this is the conclusion he reports:
"That there is nothing in the outer organization of the female brain
Which would make it different from or inferior to that of the male,
And that given the same opportunities and incentives,
The intellectual attainments of women need not be inferior to those of men."
He could hardly be more definite
In disposing of once for all, of the pure myth of the mental inferiority of the female.
He says explicitly, by the way,
That the smaller weight of the female brain is not due to inferior development.
But merely to the smaller stature of the female.
A stature which, of course implies nothing important about male superiority.
Unless, indeed, man wishes to argue that the or is his superior
Because its bones are larger and it weighs more!
Other interesting by-products of the investigation of Dr. Papez
Include the discovery that the speech area is frequently larger in the male brain—
A fact which surprises no woman
Who has had to listen to the interminable oral autobiographies of all the men she knows!
The area devoted to the functions of vision is better developed in the female brain, according to Dr. Papez—
And, again, a woman is unsurprised—
Naturally her vision is stronger than man's.
Since she's had to give it so much exercise keeping an eye on him!
Finally, Dr. Papez reports that the brain area containing the sensory functions of the hand—
Of course, every woman will agree—
She knows that her hand always has had to be more sensitive than man's.
Since her hand beats biscuit, weaves invisible darning, inserts studs in dress shirts, soothes the fevered brow—
Rocks the cradle—rules the world!
On the whole, then, the scientific discoveries of Dr. Papez are no news to women—
And no particular thrill, when women stop to consider the scientific advantages of shopping during the morning hours? Most women can arrange their home duties to enable them to shop in the morning. It has more become a habit to go shopping in the afternoon and usually women return home overtired and exhausted as a result of the nerve-racking conditions they encounter. In the morning the stores are not congested and this facilitates shopping; the salespeople can give individual attention to customers, which is impossible in the afternoon rush; you have better opportunities for viewing stocks—by afternoon these have been much handled and in many cases are a confused mass. Not being rushed, you will be less likely to buy and afterward regret the purchase, and there is less probability of mistakes by the salespeople. Morning shoppers avoid the crowded conditions on street cars; they do not lose so much time on account of congested street traffic.

Life's bitter, ancient cry.

Being in love, we found
Joyous infinitude—
Sun, air and solid ground—
Tuned to our singing mood.
Now, both the sea and sky
Have other tales to tell;
New words that you and I
Heat, often, all too well.

Though longing eyes beseech,
Though silent hearts may yearn,
Old joys are out of reach
And days do not return.

Young lovers, hand in hand,
Will laugh, as we did then,
With wind and sea and sand—
We shall not go again.

CHANGE

Once she tossed her dreams into the sky,
Into the quiet of the middle night—
Hoping they would touch upon a star
Coming back with radiance of light.

Now that love has thrown her a bouquet
No more dreams are scattered on the air.
In themselves, they are enough for her;
Within her heart she holds them as a prayer.

HOW DO THEY GET AWAY WITH IT?

Mrs. Hoover is in Philadelphia and the President goes breezily off for a week-end fishing trip. Mrs. Longworth is in Chicago, with her friend Ruth Hanna McCormick, and the Speaker for the first time obtains three days' legislative leave of absence to take a trip to Aiken and Charleston. They must have this thing down to a system in Washington!

Why Not Shop in The Morning?

HAVE you ever considered the advantage of shopping during the morning hours? Most women can arrange their home duties to enable them to shop in the morning. It has more become a habit to go shopping in the afternoon and usually women return home overtired and exhausted as a result of the nerve-racking conditions they encounter. In the morning the stores are not congested and this facilitates shopping; the salespeople can give individual attention to customers, which is impossible in the afternoon rush; you have better opportunities for viewing stocks—by afternoon these have been much handled and in many cases are a confused mass. Not being rushed, you will be less likely to buy and afterward regret the purchase, and there is less probability of mistakes by the salespeople. Morning shoppers avoid the crowded conditions on street cars; they do not lose so much time on account of congested street traffic.

A DAY PAST

We shall not go again
To that little cove of the sea;
Other maidens, other men
Will go there, but not we.
That was a day of joy!
Cool winds were clean and kind
To daring girl and boy,
Eager to seek, to find.
More too young to fear
The infinite of the sky
And in the sea to hear.

An unskilled accompanist can ruin the performance of the most glorious singer. Ill-chosen accessories can ruin the effect of the smartest of frocks. One ungainly chair can mar the whole decorative scheme of a room. And in food, as in everything else, it is the little things that count.
Of what avail is it to have a tender and flavorful roast if a cook does not know just the right flavors to combine with it in stuffing? How can your family relish their prescribed amounts of greens if they are always served with the same kind of dressing?
There are many combinations of food so generally accepted that one hardly thinks of one without thinking of the other. Ham and eggs, for instance. Corned beef and cabbage. Mutton with caper sauce. But there are many other less-known combinations that have just such an affinity for each other.
Cranberries, for instance, have long been associated with turkey and chicken. Few cooks realize how delicious cranberries are served with roast veal. Plain cranberries are

CRANBERRY CONSERVE

1 cup cranberries
1 cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
3 cups sugar
1 cup raisins
1 orange
1 lemon
1/2 cup pitted prunes
Wash the cranberries, add the cold water and cook until the skins burst. Strain, forcing some of the pulp through the sieve, and add the boiling water to the juice. Put on a low fire and add the sugar, raisins, prunes, nut meats and lemon and orange. Simmer for twenty to thirty minutes, or until it will thicken when tested on a cold dish. Pour into glasses and chill. When serving a heavy conserve such as this with a meat course, it is best to serve a simple dressing with a dash of lemon and grapefruit juice, an equal amount of olive oil and half a cake of cream cheese is ideal.

Long and Pointed Nails Accent Square Fingers

By Marguerite Barnes

FIGURES 1 and 2 show the right and wrong way to care for a large hand with square finger tips. In the first drawing the nails follow the curve of the finger tips and are slightly shorter. This was a standard of beauty with the Greeks—to have the nail shorter than the tip of the finger—and most artists to-day would agree with them. Figure 2 shows the nails worn long, pointed and using a very red polish. It gives the hand a claw-like look and does not improve its shape. Figure 1 also shows how a large wrist joint may be disguised by wearing several bracelets. Figure 2 shows how one small bracelet merely emphasizes the joint. Figure 3 illustrates how an angular and unattractive hand may be flattered by one of the new cuffs which is softly draped about the wrist with buttons on the cuffs to give it width. Figure 4 shows how one of the new shorter sleeves emphasizes the bad points of such a hand.

THE sign of "The Kettle, the Pot and the Pan" is a literal sign. From an iron cross-arm a brass kettle, an iron pot and a tin pan swing merrily in the breeze. It is right opposite the suburban railroad station.

And if you had come up on the 5.15 on a certain night you would have overheard this very conversation: "How on earth did you get time to prepare such delicious things?" said Bessie Blake, the architect, to her friend, Grete Grange, the artist, as they sat at dinner one autumn evening in the latter's little country apartment.

"You're in town every day, just as I am, and here's chicken a la King, a salad, beautiful to look at and delicious to eat. I'll leave for me. It's the Kettle, the Pot and the Pan. That little shop sells cooked foods, and others too, like salads. I left my salad dish there this morning when I put my car in the garage, and told them what I wanted in my salad, ordered my chicken a la King, picked out my dessert, and told them the train I would be out on, and lo, when we reached here, I ran in, and out, and home, and put the chicken in a double boiler and the salad in the icebox.

"Well, before I help myself to that other pie, out with your secret." "All right. You remember that after we left the Central Garage I stopped the car at the little shop just opposite the station. Well, young lady, that shop is a lifesaver for me. It's the Kettle, the Pot and the Pan. That little shop sells cooked foods, and others too, like salads. I left my salad dish there this morning when I put my car in the garage, and told them what I wanted in my salad, ordered my chicken a la King, picked out my dessert, and told them the train I would be out on, and lo, when we reached here, I ran in, and out, and home, and put the chicken in a double boiler and the salad in the icebox.

You and Your Child

Happy Meal Times

"STELLA had a C in effort on her report card," Mrs. Grant informs her husband, as the family sits down to their evening meal. "What, that?" says he, glancing at his small daughter. The child's face flushes and her eyes fill with tears. Even if she hasn't entirely lost her appetite, will her digestion be benefited by such a scene? Is the meal hour a good time to select to rectify the children's shortcomings or administer scolding and criticism? "Eat your spinach," or "Finish your potatoes," are constant admonitions at many tables, so that the children look forward to meal time with dread. Why not leave them alone when they are healthy and have plenty of air and exercise, and in most cases they will be so hungry that they will eat without prompting. We must remember, however, that all youngsters do not require the same amount of food; and also that occasionally skipping one's carrots or potatoes, or even a whole meal, will not injure one for life.

I think children are entitled to one or two food dislikes. Mary can grow up strong and healthy even if she never eats spinach! To quote Dr. Aldrich, a recognized authority in this field, "In my experience, to make a child eat everything so that he will like everything when he grows up, usually means that very soon he likes nothing because his attitude toward his meals has been changed from a pleasant one to an antagonistic one." Often one hears an adult say, "I never eat beans. I detest them." But when subsequently his youngster refuses this vegetable, he wonders why and is quite amazed! And table manners—how they can spoil a good meal! "Take your seat off the table," "Hold your fork this way." "Did you get a spot on the cloth?" Endlessly come the comments and warnings. "But," you may say, "we can't teach table manners anywhere else but at the table, can we?" Of course we must teach table manners, but we must go about it very slowly, not expecting to teach everything at once. Moreover we must be patient and teach our lesson in a kindly, friendly way. Don't let us ruin the children's appetite and digestion; and don't let's spoil this precious period that the family has together.

The meal hour should be a jolly, happy one—a time for jokes and interesting discussions. Let's make it such a pleasant period that our children will be able to look back upon it all their lives with joy and gratitude.

Oh, Go to Bed

"DAD, what's pin money? Is it just calling pins money like kids do playing store?" "No, son, it is real money—small amounts of money earned by a woman or given to a woman to buy clothes or little personal things she may want." "Why is it called pin money?" "Because years ago pins were very valuable, and it was the custom to give money to the bride that she might buy the pins she needed for her wardrobe." "Gee, dad, why didn't they use hooks and eyes?" "Hooks and eyes hadn't been invented then." "Well, why didn't they use snaps?" "Snaps hadn't been invented either." "Life wasn't any snap then, was it, dad?" "Oh, go to bed."

Romance Over As Pair Face Murder Trial

LOS ANGELES, April 21.—(UP)—A romance which had lasted 15 years was broken today when Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich appeared in superior court and asked that she be given a trial separate from that of Otto Sanhuber, with whom she is accused of the murder of her wealthy husband.

At the same time the widow entered pleas of not guilty to the charge, not guilty by reason of former jeopardy and not guilty by former acquittal. Sanhuber pleaded not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity last week.

Fred Oesterreich was shot to death in his home 8 years ago. Police finally decided that burglars had committed the crime and released the widow.

But recently an attorney told police of Sanhuber's existence and the latter, when arrested, confessed that he had lived at the Oesterreich home for years, unknown to the husband of the woman he loved.

One night eight years ago, Sanhuber said, he crept out of his attic retreat and killed the husband when the latter moved to attack him. The tie which led Mrs. Oesterreich to assertedly protect her lover then, was missing in court today, neither word nor glance has passed between them. Judge Walter Wood has taken the severance of trial motion under submission and set April 30 as date of decision.

VICTIMS OF P.I. STORM STARVING

MANILA, P. I., April 21.—(UP)—Parts of the disaster stricken Philippines, lashed by a terrific typhoon almost while embers from a major fire still smoked, were in crying need tonight of food.

The typhoon engulfed the province of Leyte Samar, killed scores laid all crops low, crumpled houses tore down telegraph lines and flooded roads.

Thousands were homeless while the entire province faced actual famine, said authorities, unless relief was forthcoming immediately.

Aid Rushed
Red Cross units hurried to the area, however, while Gov. La Cruz of Leyte appealed to Gen. Dwight Davis, governor of the islands, to raise funds for relief work.

A tax moratorium may be declared until the province is rehabilitated inasmuch as the typhoon was described as being worse than the great wind of 1928. The storm was held partly responsible for the present economic depression in the islands.

So violent was the latest typhoon which gathered force late on Good Friday, that it ripped up the convent at Tolosa, sent municipal buildings at Dulag splintering, to the four winds and almost wiped from the map the villages of Palo, Burman, Carig and Tacloban.

Intervening plantations of gleaming green hemp fields and waving coconut palms were flattened.

Communication lines were so completely shattered that it was impossible to estimate the number of dead. Officials, optimistic in the face of disastrous reports filtering in, placed the casualties indefinitely at "scores."

On fire-swept Negros Island meanwhile, 12,000 persons were without shelter and most of them were badly in need of food.

PRIMO CARNERA BANNED BY STATE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 21. — (UP)—California's athletic commission, by unanimous vote, decided late today, that Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, who has been barnstorming the United States, shall not be allowed to box again in this state.

The commission also ordered that California licenses of Carnera's managers, Bill Duffy, of New York and Leon See, should be revoked; that Frank Churchill, Carnera's western manager, Tim McGrath, veteran manager of boxers, and two seconds, should be indefinitely suspended.

Action against the seven men was taken to pacify boxing fans who paid $25,000 and were dissatisfied when Carnera was granted a technical knockout over Leon "Bombo" Chevalier, 216 pound negro, at Oakland a week ago. Chevalier was giving Carnera a hard battle and had only been knocked down once when Bob Perry, one of Chevalier's seconds, threw a towel into the ring 45 seconds from the end of the sixth round.

Because Carnera and Chevalier "under the circumstances were doing their best, the commission ordered that the Italian be paid the $13,000 promised him and that Chevalier receive 1500.

Negro Framed
The purses were held up while Commissioner Charles F. Fraung made his investigation. This inquiry, Traung told the commission, indicated that "despite the fact that everything was done to prevent Chevalier from winning the contest, or even staying 'ten rounds,' Perry threw the towel in the ring while it was apparent Chevalier was in condition to continue the contest."

The towel throwing, Traung continued, "was inspired by some person connected with the management of Carnera. He said that evidence had been given to show that Churchill sat behind the negro's corner during the bout and talked with Chevalier's seconds."

It was in the interest of the boxing game, he said, that Carnera "be not allowed to box again in the state of California," and Commissioners James Woods and William Hanlon agreed with him at the special meeting today.

The seconds indefinitely suspended were Bob Laga, who had been in Chevalier's corner, and Bob Perry.

Liked California.
The commission's verdict virtually cancels several offers for Carnera's services in California, which had been declared his favorite state of the union because its climate resembled that of his sunny Italy.

Tentative offers of thousands of dollars had been made for him to meet Jack Dempsey, George Godfrey or Chevalier in a rematch.

In the future, the commission

NEW YORK MAY BAR CARNERA

NEW YORK, April 21.—(UP)—William Muldoon of the New York State Athletic Commission said today that Primo Carnera's case would be investigated thoroughly, and "some action taken when all the facts were known."

The New York board does not have a working agreement with the California commission, but has been known to accept the decisions of the latter body, as in the case of the Joe Dundee-Ace Hudkins fiasco of two years ago.

If Carnera participated in a framed bout, Muldoon indicated he would be suspended in this state.

GANDHI WILL CONTINUE FIGHT

BOMBAY, India, April 21.—(UP)—Mahatma Gandhi served notice today that he will continue his fight for India's independence, no matter how serious the situation becomes through native clashes with police.

Although he reiterated his policy of passive resistance, and non-violence he said that recent rioting in Chittagong, Calcutta and Karachi demonstrated the widespread sentiment against British rule.

"There can be no suspension of the fight, no retreating of steps," said the Mahatma, who once had abandoned a similar struggle because wholesale violence resulted. Gandhi said he had read with sadness of the events at Chittagong, where armed insurgents wrecked police armories and staged a battle with police in which nine persons were killed. The disturbance showed there are men in Bengal who did not believe in non-violence, he said, whereas he hoped to achieve his ends without violent action.

The Mahatma said his volunteers had to fight an unequal struggle against violence by the government and violence by those among their own number who had no faith in mere passive resistance. If the volunteers were true to their creed they would either emerge victorious or would be ground to atoms between two millstones, he said.

New violations of the salt law continued on a wide scale in Bombay, Allahabad, Karachi, Calcutta and elsewhere. Arrests are numerous.

Y. M. I. NINE WINS OVER I. O. O. F.

The Odd Fellows of Richmond lost by the narrow margin of one run to the Burke Y. M. I. nine Sunday on the Richmond Union high school field. The final score was 5 to 6.

Their failure to bunch their 10 hits caused the downfall of the local Odd Fellows. The Y. M. I. boys succeeded in grouping their six hits to better advantage.

Medo twirled for the Y. M. I. squad, while Orr occupied the box for the losers. Viano received for the winners, and Gualdoni performed behind the plate for the lodge-men.

The box score is as follows:

Instruction will be given by a Red Cross field instructor.

The course in first aid will start May 1. Two classes will be given afternoon and evening every Tuesday and Thursday during May. The earlier lesson will be held at 1:30 o'clock at Red Cross headquarters in the First National Bank building. The evening class will start at 7:30 o'clock at the Abbott Emergency hospital. The instruction will be conducted by Dr. L. St. John Hely.

Coreys Defeat Canner Nine

The Pacific Can company nine of Oakland succumbed to the effective chucking of Lefty Brendell, twirler for the Corey Garage squad, Sunday at El Cerrito. The local athletes defeated the visitors 7 to 6.

Brendell kept the canners guessing until the seventh canto, when the visitors recovered enough from their surprise to cross the home plate several times in the last few innings. Several new players were added to the Corey lineup Sunday, with the result that the local squad showed a great improvement over its former playing standard.

More than a dozen members of the local club have already registered in the tournament. The local players who intend to participate in the singles at Crockett are: C. Bryant, Jimmy Hurley, Carl Peterson, Jack Murdock, Phil Carlin, Irwin Sutton, Bert Childs, Darrow Sutton, Joe Zink, and Marvin Truitt. In the doubles, the teams from Richmond will consist of: C. Bryant and C. Peterson, Phil Carlin and Jimmy Hurley, Jack Murdock and Reese Hayes, and B. Petersen and Bert Childs.

In the women's matches, Richmond will be represented by Helen Dunning and Sylvia Seawright. These two local competitors will take part in both the singles and doubles.

Outboard Club To Enter Races

The local outboard motor enthusiasts will enter their craft in the outboard motorboat race from Stockton to San Francisco next week-end. The two Richmond entrants are Dr. Francis Kent and William Remell.

The trip up the river to Stockton was made Sunday by six local outboard enthusiasts, who have been sporting over the local inner harbor during the past few months. Those making the trip via water from Richmond were:

R. B. Dougall, secretary of the Richmond Outboard Motor Club; Dr. and Mrs. Francis Kent, vice-commander; Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. William Remell, Mr. and Mrs. Antone Alameda and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Zimmerman.

The trip to Stockton was made in three hours and the return trip was made in two hours and a half.

HIGH TRACK STARS IN MEET

Twelve members of the Richmond union high school track team will participate in the north coast section, C. I. F. meet at Stanford Saturday afternoon, according to Phil Hempler, local high school track coach.

Following the northern section tournament, the winners will compete in the state C. I. F. meet at the university of California oval May 10.

Several local boys are expected to be able to show their worth in the coming track event as a number of Richmond boys placed in the recent Alameda County Athletic league meet in the U. C. oval. In the track tourney, Howard Dalton of Richmond finished in second place in the 440 yard dash, while "Skip" Albert crossed the line in third place for the mile grind. These two athletes will probably share the greater part of the responsibility of bringing honors to Richmond union high school in Saturday's meet.

Why not enjoy the convenience of Natural Gas for heating your home?

Was it a troublesome task to heat your home last Winter because of the work and fuss of starting a fire? If so, why not plan now to say "Goodbye forever to the drudgery of obtaining heat?"

People everywhere are turning to the one type of heating which is the most convenient. And really, you should investigate this modern method of heating before you buy any fuel for next Winter.

The most convenient heating equipment burns Natural Gas fuel. It is entirely care-free. A touch of your finger is all that is required on your part to have a steady, even temperature for a few minutes or for all day—just as you wish. There is no soot or dirt, for gas is the cleanest fuel of all.

Furthermore, gas-fired heating equipment gives healthful heat. Many leading physicians are heating their homes with it and are recommending gas-fired heating to other people. They know that Natural Gas is safe and healthful when burned in modern appliances, correctly installed and properly connected to a chimney.

For further details, see your local heating dealer or call at our office.

COREY GARAGE WILL MEET Y. M. I.

Both refreshed from victories in last Sunday's contests, the Corey Garage and Burke Y. M. I. nines will start next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the El Cerrito lot.

Both the Coreys and the Y. M. I. athletes quaffed their thirst for victory Sunday at the expense of the Pacific Canners and the Richmond Odd Fellows. Therefore, the battle next Sunday on the El Cerrito lot promises to be a classic of the local baseball season.

Brendell will start on the hill for the garagemen, with San Miguel doing the receiving. John Medo will probably chuck for the Y. M. I. aggregation, while Viano will receive.

The complete lineup of the Corey Garage nine for next Sunday is as follows: Baldwin, first; Williams, second; McQuarrie, short; Mulley, third; Chambers, right field; Klatt, center field; Watkins, left field; Brendell, pitcher; San Miguel, catcher; Goldworthy and Woodman, utility.

Bees Like Army Plane

SACRAMENTO, April 21.—(UP)—A swarm of bees won the war today as far as an army attack plane was concerned.

Sometime last night the bees settled on the plane of Lieut. S. J. Simonton, of the Third Attack group from Galveston, Texas, and early today Simonton spotted the bees and he started to take off in the army air corp field maneuvers.

This first encounter was a victory for Simonton, as the bees disappeared in the distance when the plane left the ground.

But upon his return from the maneuvers, Simonton found the whole swarm was waiting for him. They perched on the plane wing again, immediately it landed Simonton then surrendered and called a bee expert, who removed them.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

But that is not the worst!" cried Lo-oru; and her eyes were big with fear and horror. "There was no pain in the canoe! The man had taken it home to mend it, because it was broken!"

The news was evidently all through the village now, for the beating of the drums swelled up suddenly louder and more dolefully, and the wailing of the women asumed a higher pitch.

Wade determined at once on a course of action. He had no doubt whatever that Stella had taken the canoe, though why she should have taken it without a paddle he could not guess. He ran back to the house. Meru, still in her kimono, was standing by the head of the steps; and in silence she listened to his story about the canoe.

"Look, master, look!" Lo-oru's voice, and he turned to find her beside him, a crowd of villagers with her, and others coming at the run. "The cutter!" she cried, and pointed.

He ignored the remark. "I'll go along to the village," he said. "They may have seen something of her there." And with that he left her, and went down the steps to the ground and along the coral path.

To his anxiety was added self-reproach. His anger of the night before was utterly dead, and in its place was regret that it had ever lived. He shouldn't have spoken to Stella as he had, he thought.

It would never hurt her again like that, he told himself, as he went along the coral-edged path which she had so lovingly caused. Poor little Stella! She had trusted

"Who can tell? The tides run in any and every direction."

"The reef-tides do," he said impatiently. "But what about outside, in the deep water? That is where she will have been long since. What is the general set of the ebb outside? You know these waters."

"South."

"That is—towards the Solomons." He looked at her sharply, drawing down his brow. "Why are you so unhelpful? Why do I have to drag every bit of information out of you? I don't believe you care what happens to her."

"And you do, I suppose?"

"Of course! What do you think I am, that I'd—"

"You care—a great lot?"

"We are going to look for her at once!" he said sharply.

"How? By canoe?"

"Certainly not. Canoes are too slow; besides, the ones at this island are not deep-sea craft."

"Then how?"

"In your schooner."

She looked away a moment. She was a pale girl. With a slow movement she brought her hair forward over one shoulder, stroking it as she did so. Then she faced him again.

"That is," she said, "that is it."

"If what?"

"Great Scott!" To the urge of a sudden flare of anger, he gripped her hard by the shoulder.

"I am going to take that schooner whether you like it or not," said David with great incisiveness.

"The crew won't obey you, if I told them to."

"I'll make them!"

"You couldn't! I am the only authority they recognize."

"I'll get a scratch crew among the villagers and sail her myself."

"With no pilot? With a slow movement she brought her hair forward over one shoulder, stroking it as she did so. Then she faced him again.

"That is," she said, "that is it."

"If what?"

"Great Scott!" To the urge of a sudden flare of anger, he gripped her hard by the shoulder.

"I am going to take that schooner whether you like it or not," said David with great incisiveness.

"The crew won't obey you, if I told them to."

"I'll make them!"

"You couldn't! I am the only authority they recognize."

"I'll get a scratch crew among the villagers and sail her myself."

"With no pilot? With a slow movement she brought her hair forward over one shoulder, stroking it as she did so. Then she faced him again.

"That is," she said, "that is it."

309 CONVICTS KILLED AS FIRE DESTROYS PRISON

They battered their way in and set it on fire. Firemen made for it. The convicts barred the way and turned them back.

This was the critical moment of the threatened riot, which would have been the worst as was the fire, in prison history.

Squad after squad of firemen were headed off by the convicts. The city fire chief then told the prison warden that unless his men were given adequate protection at once he would withdraw his department and leave the prison to be burned entirely. The warden decided on emergency measures. He announced that the first man who advanced so much as a yard would be shot. This word went through the crowd and nothing happened. The crisis was passed.

Order was brought about little by little. The screams from the convicts died down. National guardsmen, bayonets fixed, worked their way around trying to bring quiet.

Dead Remained
Lines were formed through which the dead and injured could be moved from the ruined prison wing to the central gates, and out to nearby fairgrounds, where a temporary hospital had been erected and an emergency morgue established in a cattle barn.

There seemed sufficient evidence that the fire was first set by convicts themselves in hope that a prison break would be possible. It was not natural but in a moment the orderly prison was in furor.

"Let them out, for God's sake," shouted a man in the corridor. Others took up the shout. The guards, fearful of a break, refused. The convicts in the corridors demanded the keys. Their demand was refused. They broke, overpowered the guards and took the keys.

Some prisoners unlocked a way to the central quadrangle. Others stayed to unlock the cells of their fellows. The fire had been well laid. It blazed upward to the fourth, fifth and sixth tiers. It was in the upper tiers that the loss of life occurred; most of it in the topmost tier.

Heroism Shown
Pickaxes were used to chop away bars in some instances; in one case convicts swore that "Big Jim" Morton, a desperate bank robber, broke out of his cell with his bare hands in a super-human burst of strength and instead of fleeing to the yard, rescued several fellow convicts. When he could find no more living he carried out two dead bodies. Frank Ward, another Cleveland, and a former policeman, also chose to redeem himself. He seized an ax and chopped his way into half a dozen cells. "Wild Bill" Croniger, saved 12 of his mates. He returned for a 13th, collapsed and was burned to death.

The prisoners moved about in the yard, later, mustering up courage for a break. It occurred to one of them that a diversion might be created by setting another fire—this time in a building unoccupied for the night. This was the warden's plan.
